Raffy's Friends Passport

Little adventures. Room for everyone.

This passport belongs to:

A first name, nickname or picture is all you need.

Draw yourself beside a friend you would like to meet.

Read, listen, look and play in your own way. You already belong - there is no test to pass!

My story discoveries

Colour a circle or draw a little mark after sharing a story. Any order is fine!

Raffy and the Tangled Line

A book adventure with Tia and the friends.

Raffy and the Wake-Up Squad

A free mini story: meet Sarge and his recruits.

Willa and the Big Splash

A free mini story: meet Dazza with Willa.

Raffy and the Very Fast Visitor

A free mini story: a ball game with three dogs.

A story I choose

Write or draw another story you have enjoyed.

Free stories: raffysoceanfriends.com/mini-stories/
No sign-up or purchase is needed to enjoy the free stories or this passport.

Next book: Raffy's First Wave is forthcoming. There is no release date yet. It will be a complete adventure you can enjoy on its own.

A hello in Oceanese

One little exchange. One friendly moment. One thing to try together.

Raffy and his friends invented Oceanese so different animals could understand one another. It spread from their friends to other ocean animals, and to land animals too. It is a make-believe language of sounds, movements and expressions.

SHARE A HELLO

In Willa and the Big Splash, Willa turns her silvery side towards the sunlight. Dazza tries a flipper wave. They are learning each other's hello.

Dazza: "Hello?" Willa: "Hello!"

YOUR TURN

Choose a wave, nod, sound or another comfortable way to say hello. Tell your partner what it means. Take turns greeting and answering. You can also point, choose a move or watch. There is no hurry.

Draw your hello, or ask a grown-up to write about it.

Different moves can share a meaning. Check that your friend understands. Your invented hello is for your own play; it does not change the books' Oceanese.

A place for one more

Favourite friends, tiny discoveries and another adventure waiting.

Draw your favourite friend doing something you enjoyed.

I liked it when...

SPOT A LITTLE MOMENT

Look again at a story picture. Can you find something small you missed? Draw it below, or tell someone about it.

My discovery

A friend to read with next time

Grown-ups: print any pages you want, at actual size or fit to page. Black-and-white printing is fine. Keep the passport at home; nothing needs to be sent in.